Safety

We ask that, unless previously agreed with us, all dogs are kept away from the front door, contained in another room, when we first arrive please. Depending on the issue, you may be asked to take additional steps to ensure safety (and also allow controlled observation of your dog's behaviour) during a New Puppy or New Dog Consultation. For example, if your new puppy or dog is reactive to (or fearful of) people entering the home, you may be asked to keep them contained in another room until a specific point during the consultation. In any case, if you have any concerns about your dog's behaviour towards visitors, yourself or anyone else present at the consultation (including other dogs) or are concerned that they may cause injury, it is entirely your responsibility to take all necessary steps (eg. muzzling the dog and/ or keeping them on the lead) to prevent this from happening. It is essential that you take sensible safety precautions and then discuss how and when the dog should be introduced during the consultation rather than take risks. You will be advised during the discussion how and when the dog(s) may be safely introduced to the room in which the consultation is taking place. If your dog has ever bitten a person or other animal, you must report this to us before the New Puppy or New Dog Consultation takes place so that we can advise you accordingly it will likely result in the consultation being behavioural consultation instead and two history and medical forms completed prior to the consultation. Any instances of accident or injury occurring during the consultation must be reported to us at the time they occur.

Veterinary Care and Medical Issues

We are happy to take referrals from Veterinary Professionals or bookings for New Puppy or New Dog Consultations directly from clients. If, during or after the consultation, it is felt by us that a (further) veterinary check is advisable, it will be your responsibility to ensure that this is carried out before embarking on any behaviour modification strategies suggested at the consultation, as advised. We also reserve the right to communicate with your Veterinary Surgeon about your dog(s) at any time if we deem this to be necessary or helpful. If your dog has any known allergies or intolerances to certain foods or has any other special/ medical needs, it is your responsibility to bring this to our attention prior to the start of the session.

Children

Children are welcome to be present at New Puppy or New Dog Consultations, in fact we encourage all family members or friends who may be providing daily care to your puppy or new dog to attend. It is however the responsibility of the parents / carers to determine whether or not it would be helpful or appropriate for any children / other family members to be present at any point. Please do let us know if any one who will be taking part in your puppy or dog's care has any disabilities, so that we can make sure we are creating plans accessible to every member of your puppy or dog's care. It is important that at least one adult is able to give their full attention to the discussion throughout. We accept no responsibility for children and it is the responsibility of the supervising adult to ensure children are safe and their well-being is protected at all times whether before, during or after the New Puppy or New Dog Consultation.
